

LEWIS RESIGNS JOB AS COUNTY'S AGENT

INTEREST NOW IS TURNED TO "HISTORY DAY"

Drive for $900 to Rebuild
Logan Elm Over Top
by Nearly $50

ALL STATE HELPS

Great Crowd Expected at Park Sunday

Attention of all central Ohio
Monday turned toward Logan Elm
Park, south of this city, where the
twentieth annual Ohio History Day
celebration will be held next Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Howard Jones
this city, is president of the organization which sponsors the ming each year.

Interest in the famous old mon-
arch of the nationally known Pick-
away Plains is at a higher pitch
now than ever before with a campaign to obtain $900 for the rebuilding of the tree successfully
ended Sunday afternoon when contributions to the The Herald, the
Ohio State Journal and the Chillicothe
Scioto Gazette totalled $356-
78, nearly $50 more than is needed
in rehabilitate the giant tree.

LOWRY TO SPEAK

The celebration next Sunday will begin at 1:30 p. m. with Lowry
Sater, Columbus attorney, as the principal speaker. The local high school band under the direction of Prof. C. F. Zaenglein will provide music and various educational and pioneer features are on the program.

The event has been carried on
for 20 years on the first Sunday in October, the month when, 158
years ago, Chief Logan delivered
his famous oration.

A shelter has been built at the park and bus accommodations from
the city to the park will be available. Dr. and Mrs. Howard Jones
have issued invitations for a reception for Mr. Sater to be held at their home at Park-pl after the History Day services.

TO REBUILD TREE

Statewide interest was shown in
the drive to obtain funds for the
tree which will be rebuilt by the Davy Tree Surgery Co. of Kent.
The sum of $900 will be turned over to the Ohio State Archaeological society which will in turn authorize the Devey company to

'LIAR' SAYS MORRIS

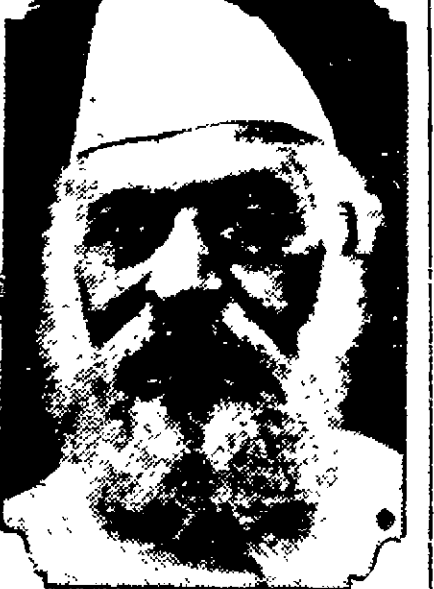

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26.—Filling
the courtroom with breathless
tension a bitter charge of "liar"
came from the lips of Maurice Maschke, county Republican leader, today as the trial of the veteran politician and five of his lieutenants began in common pleas
court here.

The accusation was hurled at Prosecutor F. L. A. Lehighy as he outlined the phases of the state's
case which alleges that the six defendants embezzled a sum of $177,000 from the Cuyahoga-co
treasury.

TIRES STOLEN

Lee Hunter who resides on the John Walters farm, north of town, reported to police Monday that some thief had stolen two tires
from his Chevrolet coach while it was parked in the garage, sometime between Sept. 18-21.

Popular Farm Bureau Worker to Accept Position
With Buyer's Firm and Cooperative Association; Has Been Here Since February,
1927; to Assume Duties on Oct. 10

H. Stanley Lewis, Pickaway-co farm agent for the past five years and seven months, Saturday evening submitted his resignation to the board of directors of the Farm Bureau and on Oct. 10 will assume his new duties as field representative for the National Order Buying Co.
and for the Central Ohio Producers Co-operative Commission association, Columbus.

His new work will consist largely of solicitation of feeder cattle
orders, marketing finished cattle,
solicitation of hogs, lambs, and
calves, and lending assistance to livestock producers to instruct

them in more economic merchandising of stock through cooperative
marketing.

Mr. Lewis' possibilities in his
new field are practically unlimited.
During his entire career in animal husbandry, in which he has few rivals, Mr. Lewis has been training for just such work and
now that he has the opportunity
he has been awaiting he will certainly take advantage of it.

GIVEN RELEASE

By unanimous action of the
board of directors Saturday evening he has been given a release
from his contract which was not to have expired until next February 15, when he would have been here
six years.

Mr. Lewis is a graduate of the St. Clairsville high school in the class of 1912. He spent the next four years obtaining an agricultural training and specialized in animal husbandry at Ohio State University. He then attended
Texas Agricultural and Mechanical University at Bryan, Texas, and Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical University at Stillwater,
Oklahoma.

Mr. Lewis began active county
work in September, 1919, as assistant county agent for Forest G.
Ketner in Delaware-co. He was under Ketner only a short time,
however, because on Jan. 15, 1920
he became agent for Wood-co, one
of the richest counties in Ohio. He remained there for six years and
two months and in 1926 he became
field secretary for the Ohio Farm Bureau federation.

He came here on Feb. 15, 1927 as
farm agent. His immediate predecessor was John D. Bragg. The only other farm agent this county
has had was Robert Wiley.

Mr. Lewis has done more to bring the agricultural people and
city people of the county together
than has any other person. He has coordinated all phases of the farm bureau work and has made Pick-
away-co's farm bureau a model for
other counties and other states to copy after. The business transacted by the farm bureau has increased every year since Mr. Lewis
became agent.

One comparison of figures will show just what Mr. Lewis is doing
and has done. In 1925 10 percent
of the Pickaway-co farmer's income was from cattle and in 1931
the figure had grown to 16 percent.

He is generally recognized as one of the leading farm agents in Ohio.

CONNECTED IN CITY

His connections in the city have
helped him in his work and have boosted the prestige of the Pick-
away-co farm bureau higher than
most farm bureaus through the state. He is at present president of the local Rotary club, vice president of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce and a director of the Pumpkin Show society. Mr. Lewis
will be able to complete his work
in this year's Pumpkin Show before he leaves to take his new
job where he will again be under Forest G. Ketner.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and their three children, Stanley, William
and Charlene have been living at 167 Watt-st. here.

The popular farm bureau mar-
leaves here with the best wishes of the entire city and county, expressing the hope that Mr. Lewis will continue to be successful in his new position.

Termining himself as a southern Democrat, Dr. Ira Landrith, chairman of the National Temperance Council, answered the objections raised against prohibition and its enforcement, in an address before 200 interested persons at the Presbyterian church here Sunday afternoon.

Speaking free from political bias,
Dr. Landrith said he was just a part of 1,500,000 adults and 500,000
young people, who have pledged themselves in preserving the 18th amendment. "I come from the south, a region that will resist any attempt to repeal the prohibition law," Dr. Landrith said.

His talk was intermingled with humor and was well accepted by those in attendance. He was introduced by Rev. E. S. Toensmeier, Presbyterian minister, following a prayer offered by Rev. R. Tibbo Maxey.

GOODYEAR TRIAL UNDERWAY TODAY

COLUMBUS, Sept. 26.—Trial of William Goodyear, 61, for the slay-ing of Marie Legge Stark, 25, last April 17, began in Criminal court
here before Judge Henry L. Scar-
lett today.

Goodyear pleaded not guilty because of insanity last week.

Among the witnesses who were
expected to be called to testify in
the trial were two physicians appointed by the court to examine defendant and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Legge of Circleville relatives of
the slain girl.

4 OTHERS INJURED

Accident Happens When Rear Tire Blows Out

Vera Louise, 5, daughter of
Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Day of Chillicothe, residents of Ash-
ville until about a year ago,
was instantly killed and her
grandparents, Mr. and Mrs.
Ira O'Day of near Ashville
and her two brothers, Lawrence, 13, and Elliott, 10, were injured at 10 a. m. Sunday
when the automobile driven
by the girl's father left the
road 10 miles north of Delaware, and turned over.

The party of seven was going to Marion to spend the day with relatives when the fatal accident happened. A rear tire blew out and the car skidded and turned around.
It hung on the edge of the road
for a moment then toppled over
into the ditch. The little girl was evidently trying to get out of the
car through a window for the edge
of the automobile's top crushed

ELDER PEOPLE HURT

The grandmother was the most
seriously injured besides the deceased child. She suffered a broken collarbone and several
fractured ribs. The grandfather
sustained torn ligaments in his
arm and the two boys, Lawrence
and Elliott, were cut and bruised.
Mr. and Mrs. O'Day escaped with minor injuries.

The O'Day family has been residing at 750 E. 4th-st, Chillicothe,
where Mr. O'Day is connected with
the Standard Oil Co. The family
is widely known in the Ashville
vicinity.

BORN IN ASHVILLE

The little girl was born May 29,
1927, in Ashville the daughter of
Frank and Clodie Holt O'Day.
Her parents, brothers and grandparents survive.

Funeral services will be Tuesday
at 2 p. m. at the United Brethren
church in Ashville, Rev. Hiles officiating, with interment in South
Blainfield cemetery by E. F.
Schlegel.

YOUTH AND MINER SHOT DOWN BY SNIPERS; ONE MAN CONFESSES HIS CRIME

ATHENS, Sept. 26.—An 18-
year-old boy was shot and killed
early this morning at Hunterdon,
located near mine 267 of the Ohio
Collieries Co., in what officials
fear to be a new outbreak of hostilities in the Hocking Valley coal
strike.

The slaying of the boy, Clamont Banfield, was the second within the last six hours in the valley. Only
a short time before, Boyd Vincent, 45, an employee of the Lohrberg mine,
was fatally wounded, according to authorities, by Kash Tedlow, 38,
described as a strike agitator.

STOOD IN KITCHEN

Young Banfield, who was graduated from Hollister high school last
year, was shot down as he stood
in the kitchen of his home kindling
a fire for the family breakfast.

His mother, Mrs. Arthur Banfield,
was standing at his side when the
bullet crashed through a window
of the room and pierced his body.
Mrs. Banfield declared that just
a few minutes before her son was
felled by the bullet, the spotlight
from the mine was trained on the window.

Although it could not be definitely determined, it was presumed
that the shot was fired from the direction of the mine.

NOT AN EMPLOYEE

Whether or not the bullet was intended for young Banfield or his father was a matter of speculation.
The boy was not employed in the
mine, but his father was understood to be an employee.

The slaying of Vincent occurred

FATHER HANNAN'S WILL IS IN COURT

Due to the absence of one of the testees, Miss Helen Graham of Butler, Pa., the last will and testament of the late Rt. Rev. Maurice J. Hannan, filed in probate court, will not be probated until later in the week.

Lawrence Jeffries of Lancaster
and Emmitt L. Crist are attorneys.

PROMISES TO PAY

Harold Hector of Kinderhook promised to pay a fine of $5 with

pare Signatures

Report Many Seek Removal of Names

The fate of the petition for a referendum on the proposed $25,000
bond issue for a sewage disposal
plant here will be decided at a
meeting of the county board of elections at 7:30 p. m. Monday.

Petitions filed by H. Scott
Eagleson, and Vatter and John Courtright asking the referendum
will be checked with names of signers who have since asked that
their names be stricken from the petitions.

CIRCULATE PAPERS

Members of the Calcar Products
Corp., owner of the plant which the
city is contemplating purchasing,
have circulated petitions during the past week to persons who previously asked the referendum. According to members of the corporation
a great many have asked that their names be removed from the first

TO COMPARE NAMES

The election board will compare
names on the two petitions and if they find that by striking off the
names of those who request it,
that the original petition does not
contain 287 names, the necessary
number to be placed on the ballot
November 8, it will be thrown out
according to Harry E. Well, Clerk
of the board.

The petition filed by Eagleson
and the Courtrights carried 360
names.

Errors During Trial
Charged by Renick and

SEEK NEW TRIAL

To Hear Motion Tuesday
or Wednesday

Citing 15 alleged errors in his trial which ended in conviction last Thursday morning, attorneys for Newell McNeal, 50, Williamsport
stock man, have filed a motion for
a new trial in common pleas court.
McNeal, represented by Tom A.
Renick and C. A. Weldon, was found guilty of a statutory charge
brought by Margaret Pontius, 15,
after a jury of seven women and
five men deliberated for nine
hours.

Judge Joseph W. Adkins, before whom the trial was conducted, said Monday that the hearing on the motion will be held
either Tuesday or Wednesday.

TEXT OF MOTION

The text of the motion follows:
1.—Failure of the prosecuting
attorney and one of the jurors,
George Wintough, to disclose the fact that the prosecuting attorney
is the attorney for the wife of
said juror in a proceeding for
bankruptcy commenced by her and
now pending in the U. S. District court for the southern district of Ohio, eastern division, and which
said bankruptcy proceedings were pending during the trial of this
cause.

2.—The verdict is not sustained
by any evidence.

3.—The verdict is contrary to
law.

4.—The verdict should have been given for the defendant, Newell
McNeal, instead of the State.

5.—The court erred in rejecting
evidence offered by the defendant
and objected to by the State.

6.—The court erred in permitting
evidence to go to the jury offered
by the State and objected to by
the defendant.

7.—The court erred in giving
special written instructions 1 and 2, respectively, requested by the State and excepted to by the defendant.

8.—The court erred in its general
charge in its failure to correctly
state the reasonable doubt rule as required by law.

9.—The court erred in its general charge with reference to the presumption of innocence to the accused.

CITE INSTRUCTIONS

10.—The court erred in its voluntary instruction to the jury after
the jury had retired and during its
deliberations and to which instruction the defendant excepted.

8 FATALLY HURT

Planes Crash In Midair in West Killing Four; Thieves
Die In Crash.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26.—The
sudden and unexpected banking of
two airplanes as they were about to
land was blamed today for a midair
collision that cost the lives of four persons.

The dead: James L. Wismer, 32,
and his wife, Irma, 29; Rollo G.
Cadden, 25; and James E. Hill, 31,
all of Los Angeles.

to the Los Angeles eastside airport. The two planes, Wismer
piloting one and Cadden the other,
banked sharply apparently un-
aware of each other's closeness.
For a moment they hung together
in midair, and then hurtled to the ground. All of the occupants were killed instantly.

No word has been received from
the plane long overdue from Tokyo, since it passed Petropavlovsk
on the Kamchatka peninsula at 5:30 p. m. Saturday (12:30 a. m.
P. S. T.).

GANDHI ENDS FAST AT NEWS OF AGREEMENT

Dramatic Undertaking
End As 'God Man' Stops
Orange Juice

THOUSANDS CHEER

Man Was in Danger of Life Doctors Say

BY C. S. DE ANDRADE
POONA, India, Sept. 25.—The
dramatic "Fast Unto Death" undertaken by Mahatma M. K.
Gandhi in behalf of India's "un-gotten men"—her 60,000,000 "untouchables"—came to an end this
afternoon.

One hour and 15 minutes after Gandhi was informed that the British and Indian governments
had approved settlement of the Hindu problem, the Mahatma
raised his head from his hard cot
under a mango tree in the courtyard of the Yeravda jail and called
for nourishment.

A glass containing two ounces
of orange juice was handed to him
by the superintendent of the jail.
His thin lips curled over the rim
and he took into his frail and
emaciated body the first nourishment of any sort in more than 126
hours.

CROWD CHEERS

Only a few persons, including
the superintendent and the Mahat-
ma's doctor, were present at the
breaking of the fast. But outside
of the prison where Gandhi threw
his life into the balance in an effort to raise the status of India's
depressed classes, thousands of Hindus sat and stood in the sun,
overjoyed to hear that their "God man" had eaten in time to shape
off the onrush of death.

It was with a characteristic passion that Gandhi brought his period of self-starvation to an end.
At noon, he was informed that the British had accepted the unprecedented joint Hindu-Muslim presentation to the viceroy of his coo of immovable and Then he called for food and a den burst of activity inside the jail recorded Gandhi's decision to go on living to fight for the
countless starving millions he loves.

IN DANGER BONE

The end of the starvation
period came just after doctors had declared Gandhi had entered the
danger zone and was beginning to live on his muscle rather than fat
reserve.

Apart from the possibility of complete collapse and paralysis,
it was said, he was in the danger zone where every day he approached closer to death.

For hours, crowds of Hindus had
stood around the jail.

He had been given the news of
the acceptance of the Poona

three stitches to close.

INTEREST NOW IS TURNED TO "HISTORY DAY"

Logan Elm Over Top
by Nearly $50

Great Crowd Expected at Park Sunday

Monday turned toward Logan Elm
twentieth annual Ohio History Day
celebration will be held next Sun-
day afternoon. Mrs. Howard Jones
this city, is president of the so-ciation which sponsors the meeting each year.

Interest in the famous old mon-
arch of the nationally known Pick-
away Plains is at a higher pitch
now than ever before with a cam-
building of the tree successfully
ended Sunday afternoon when con-
Ohio State Journal and the Chillicothe
Scioto Gazette totalled $856-
78, nearly $50 more than is needed
in rehabilitate the giant tree.

The celebration next Sunday will
begin at 1:30 p. m. with Lowry
Sater, Columbus attorney, as the
Prof. C. F. Zaenglein will provide
music and various educational and
pioneer features are on the program.

The event has been carried on
for 20 years on the first Sunday in October, the month when, 158
years ago, Chief Logan delivered
his famous oration.

park and bus accommodations from
able. Dr. and Mrs. Howard Jones
have issued invitations for a reception for Mr. Sater to be held at

Statewide interest was shown in
tree which will be rebuilt by the Daxey Tree Surgery Co. of Kent, O. The sum of $900 will be turned over to the Ohio State Archaeological society which will in turn

the courtroom with breathless
tension a bitter charge of "liar"
came from the lips of Maurice Maschke, county Republican leader,
today as the trial of the veteran politician and five of his lieutenants began in common pleas
court here.

Prosecutor P. L. A. Leighley as he outlined the phases of the state's
defendants embezzled a sum of $177,000 from the Cuyahoga-co
treasury.

With Buyer's Firm and Cooperative Association; Has Been Here Since February,
1927; to Assume Duties on Oct. 10

H. Stanley Lewis, Pickaway-co farm agent for the past five years
and seven months, Saturday evening submitted his resignation to the board of directors of the Farm Bureau and on Oct. 10 will assume his
and for the Central Ohio Producers Co-operative Commission Association, Columbus.

His new work will consist largely of solicitation of feeder cattle
orders, marketing finished cattle,
calves, and lending assistance to
livestock producers to instruct

them in more economic merchan-
dising of stock through cooperative
marketing.

Mr. Lewis' possibilities in his
new field are practically unlimited.
During his entire career in animal husbandry, in which he has
few rivals, Mr. Lewis has been
training for just such work and
now that he has the opportunity
he has been awaiting he will cer-

GIVEN RELEASE

By unanimous action of the
board of directors Saturday evening he has been given a release
from his contract which was not to
have expired until next February 15, when he would have been here
six years.

Mr. Lewis is a graduate of the
St. Clairsville high school in the class of 1912. He spent the next
four years obtaining an agricultural training and specialized in
animal husbandry at Ohio State University. He then attended
Texas Agricultural and Mechanical
Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical University at Stillwater,
Oklahoma.

Mr. Lewis began active county
work in September, 1919, as assistant county agent to Forest G.
Ketner in Delaware-co. He was
under Ketner only a short time,
however, because on Jan. 15, 1920
he became agent for Wood-co, one
of the richest counties in Ohio. He
Bureau Federation.

HERE IN 1927

He came here on Feb. 15, 1927 as
farm agent. His immediate pre-
decessor was John D. Bragg. The
only other farm agent this county
has had was Robert Wiley.

Mr. Lewis has done more to bring the agricultural people and
city people of the county together
other counties and other states to copy after. The business transacted by the farm bureau has increased every year since Mr. Lewis
became agent.

One comparison of figures will
show just what Mr. Lewis is doing
and has done. In 1925 10 percent
of the Pickaway-co farmers' in-
come was from cattle and in 1931
the figure had grown to 16 percent.

He is generally recognized as
one of the leading farm agents in

boosted the prestige of the Pick-
most farm bureaus through the
state. He is at present president of the local Rotary club, vice president of the Circleville Chamber of
Pumpkin Show society. Mr. Lewis
will be able to combine his work
in this year's Pumpkin Show before he leaves to take his new
job where he will again be under
Forest G. Ketner.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and their
three children, Stanley, William
and Charlene have been living at 167 Watt-st. here.

The popular farm bureau market leaves here with the best wishes of the entire city and county, so
"So Long, Stan, Pickaway-co's loss is someone else's gain."

GOODYEAR TRIAL UNDERWAY TODAY

COLUMBUS, Sept. 26.—Trial of William Goodyear, 61, for the slay-
ing of Marie Legge Stark, 25, last
April 17, began in Criminal court
here before Judge Henry L. Scar-
lett today.

Goodyear pleaded not guilty because of insanity last week.

Among the witnesses who were
expected to be called to testify in
the trial were two physicians ap-
pointed by the court to examine
defendant and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Legge of Circleville, relatives of
the slain girl.

Crash Kills Child

Skull of Vera Louise O'Day, Crushed As Auto
Tumbles Into Ditch

4 OTHERS INJURED

Accident Happens When Rear Tire Blows Out

Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Day of Chillicothe, residents of Ash-
ville until about a year ago,
was instantly killed and her
grandparents, Mr. and Mrs.
Ira O'Day of near Ashville
and her two brothers, Lawrence, 13, and Elliott, 10, were injured at 10 a. m. Sunday
when the automobile driven
by the girl's father left the
road 10 miles north of Delaware, and turned over.

The party of seven was going to Marion to spend the day with relatives when the fatal accident happened. A rear tire blew out and the car skidded and turned around.
It hung on the edge of the road
for a moment then toppled over
evidently trying to get out of the
of the automobile's top crushed the

ELDER PEOPLE HURT

The grandmother was the most
seriously injured besides the deceased child. She suffered a broken collarbone and several
sustained torn ligaments in his
arm and the two boys, Lawrence
and Elliott, were cut and bruised.
Mr. and Mrs. O'Day escaped with
minor injuries.

The O'Day family has been re-
siding at 750 E. 4th-st., Chillicothe,
where Mr. O'Day is connected with
the Standard Oil Co. The family
is widely known in the Ashville
vicinity.

BORN IN ASHVILLE

The little girl was born May 29,
1927, in Ashville the daughter of
Frank and Clodie Hott O'Day.
Her parents, brothers and grand-
parents survive.

Funeral services will be Tuesday
at 2 p. m. at the United Brethren
church in Ashville, Rev. Hiles of-
Bloomfield cemetery by E. F.
Schlegel.

PETITIONS FOR VOTE ON BOND ISSUE STUDIED

Board of Elections to Meet
This Evening to Compare Signatures

Report Many Seek Re-
moval of Names

The fate of the petition for a referendum on the proposed $25,000
bond issue for a sewage disposal
meeting of the county board of

Eagleson, and Vattler and John Courtright asking the referendum
will be checked with names of
petitions.

Members of the Calcar Products
Corp., owner of the plant which the
city is contemplating purchasing,
have circulated petitions during the past week to persons who previously asked the referendum. According to members of the corporation
a great many have asked that their

The election board will compare
names on the two petitions and if
they find that by striking off the
names of those who request it,
contain 287 names, the necessary
number to be placed on the ballot
November 8, it will be thrown out
according to Harry E. Well, Clerk
of the board.

and the Courtrights carried 360
names.

TWO KILLED IN MINE WAR

Youth and Miner Shot Down by Snipers; One Man Confesses his Crime

ATHENS, Sept. 26.—An 18-
year-old boy was shot and killed
early this morning at Hunterdon,
located near mine 267 of the Ohio
Collieries Co., in what officials
fear to be a new outbreak of hos-
strike.

The slaying of the boy, Clarmont Banfield, was the second within the last six hours in the valley. Only
a short time before, Boyd Vincent, 45, an employee of the Lurhig mine,
was fatally wounded, according to authorities, by Kash Todlow, 38,

Young Banfield, who was graduated from Hollister high school last
year, was shot down as he stood
in the kitchen of his home kindling
a fire for the family breakfast.
His mother, Mrs. Arthur Banfield,
was standing at his side when the
bullet crashed through a window
of the room and pierced his body.

Mrs. Banfield declared that just
a few minutes before her son was
felled by the bullet, the spotlight
window.

Although it could not be definitely determined, it was presumed
that the shot was fired from the direction of the mine.

Whether or not the bullet was intended for young Banfield or his
The boy was not employed in the
mine, but his father was understood to be an employee.

The slaying of Vincent occurred

Errors During Trial

SEEK NEW TRIAL

To Hear Motion Tuesday or Wednesday

trial which ended in conviction last Thursday morning, attorneys for Newell McNeal, 50, Williamsport
stock man, have filed a motion for
McNeal, represented by Tom A.
Renick and C. A. Weldon, was
found guilty of a statutory charge
brought by Margaret Pontius, 15,
after a jury of seven women and
five men deliberated for nine

Judge Joseph W. Adkins, before whom the trial was conducted, said Monday that the hearing on the motion will be held
either Tuesday or Wednesday.

The text of the motion follows:
1.—Failure of the prosecuting
attorney and one of the jurors,
George Winfough, to disclose the
fact that the prosecuting attorney
is the attorney for the wife of
bankruptcy commenced by her and
now pending in the U. S. District Court for the southern district of Ohio, eastern division, and which
pending during the trial of this
cause.

2.—The verdict is not sustained
by any evidence.
3.—The verdict is contrary to
law.
4.—The verdict should have been
given for the defendant, Newell
McNeal, instead of the State.

5.—The court erred in rejecting
evidence offered by the defendant
and objected to by the State.

evidence to go to the jury offered
by the State and objected to by
the defendant.
7.—The court erred in giving
special written instructions 1 and
2, respectively, requested by the State and excepted to by the defendant.

8.—The court erred in its general
charge in its failure to correctly
state the reasonable doubt rule as
required by law.
9.—The court erred in its general charge with reference to the
presumption of innocence to the
accused.

CITE INSTRUCTIONS

10.—The court erred in its volun-
tary instruction to the jury after
the jury had retired and during its
deliberations and to which instruc-

8 FATALLY HURT

Planes Crash In Midair in West Killing Four; Thieves Die In Crash.

sudden and unexpected banking of
two airplanes as they were about to
land was blamed today for a midair
collision that cost the lives of four
persons.

The dead: James L. Wismer, 32,
and his wife, Irma, 29; Rollo G.
Cadden, 25; and James E. Hill, 31,
all of Los Angeles.

to the Los Angeles eastside air-
port. The two planes, Wismer
piloting one and Cadden the other,
banked sharply apparently un-
aware of each other's closeness.
For a moment they hung together
in midair, and then hurtled to the ground. All of the occupants were killed instantly.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 26.— Four men were dead today, after three of them stole a Pan American airplane here and attempted to fly to San Paulo, headquarters of the Brazilian rebels.

The fourth, a night watchman,
was kidnapped and forced into the plane by the three adventurers.

KIRWIN SPEAKS

porter, spoke to the faculty and student body of Circleville high school in chapel services Monday morning using his trip to California as a topic.

McALLISTER RITES

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon for John S. Mc-Allister, 62, who died at his home here Thursday. Five children including Mrs. Edna Spindler and Pearl and Thomas McAllister, all of this city, survive.

Again Threatened

Judge John P. McGorty, of Chicago, who is being closely guarded following receipt of letter threatening him with death—the death, the letter said, which the bomb that exploded in front of his home failed to bring about. A boy and girl were seriously injured in the bomb explosion intended for Judge McGorty. The judge is shown here examining weapons taken from prisoners he has sentenced.

MAKE PLANS FOR INGALLS

Republicans To Have Gala Day When Gubernatorial Candidate Appears.

At a meeting Saturday afternoon with 50 persons in attendance
plans for a reception for David S. Ingalls, Republican candidate for governor, were made.
Mr. Ingalls will fly here on Tuesday, Oct. 4, and will be the guest at a banquet, open to the public, at the Boggs Hotel at noon. Any person who desires to attend may obtain a ticket at Republican headquarters, W. Main-st.

After the reception at the Boggs
a public meeting will be held at the Grand Opera House at 1:30 p.
m. when Mr. Ingalls and other Republican state candidates will speak.

A reception committee will greet
Mr. Ingalls at Stevenson's field in Jackson-twp where he will land.

FLYERS MISSING

Terrific Wind Storm Lashes Behring Sea; Japanese Crew Is Unreported.

NOME, Alaska, Sept. 26.—A terrific wind was still lashing the Bering Sea here today while a lookout was constantly on watch for the three Japanese good will flyers enroute to San Francisco via Nome. It was generally feared their plane has been forced down between here and Petropavlovsk, Siberia.

No word has been received from
the plane, long overdue from Tokyo, since it passed Petropavlovsk
on the Kamchatka peninsula at
P. S. T.)

Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A.
Douglas debated slavery 75 years ago, U. S. Senator Robert J. Bulley and Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, rival Ohio candidates for the U. S. senatorship, tonight will begin a series of debates on prohibition.

McELHANEY RITES

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 11 a. m. at the home of her sisters in Coolville, O., for Margaret McElhanev who died here late Friday evening at the Home and Hospital. Interment will be in Bamberhoo cemetery by the Albaugh Co.

GANDHI ENDS FAST AT NEWS OF AGREEMENT

Dramatic Undertaking
End As 'God Man' Sips
Orange Juice

THOUSANDS CHEER

Life Doctors Say

BY C. S. DE ANDRADE
dramatic "Fast Unto Death" un-
dertaken by Mahatma M. K.
Gandhi in behalf of India's "forgotten men"—her 60,000,000 "untouchables"—came to an end this
afternoon.

One hour and 15 minutes after Gandhi was informed that the British and Indian governments
had approved settlement of the
raised his head from his hard cot
under a mango tree in the courtyard of the Yeravda jail and called
for nourishment.

A glass containing two ounces
of orange juice was handed to him
by the superintendent of the jail.
His thin lips curled over the rim
and he took into his frail and
emaciated body the first nourishment of any sort in more than 145
hours.

CROWD CHEERS

Only a few persons, including
the superintendent and the Mahat-
ma's doctor, were present at the
breaking of the fast. But outside
of the prison where Gandhi threw
his life into the balance in an effort to raise the status of India's
depressed classes, thousands of Hindus sat and stood in the sun,
overjoyed to hear that their "holy man" had eaten in time to stave
off the onrush of death.

It was with a characteristic gesture that Gandhi brought his period of self-starvation to an end.
At noon, he was informed that Britain had accepted the agreement granting joint political representation to the Hindus. For one hour and 15 minutes, he lay on his cot, immovable and silent.
Then he called for food and a sudden bustle of activity inside the
jail recorded Gandhi's decision to
go on living to fight for the
countless starving millions he
loves.

IN DANGER ZONE

The end of the starvation period came just after doctors had declared Gandhi had entered the
danger zone and was beginning to
live on his muscle rather than fat
reserve.

Apart from the possibilities of complete collapse and paralysis, it was said, he was in the stage
where every day he approached
closer to death.

For hours, crowds of Hindus had
stood around the jail.

He had been given the news of
the acceptance of the Poona

TEDLOW CONFESSES

Several members of the church congregation heard a shot ring out a short time after Vincent had started toward his home. Rushing back, they found Vincent's body sprawled on the ground with a bullet hole in the right chest.

Later, Tedlow surrendered himself to Sheriff Wayne Wingett and allegedly confessed the slaying.

begin work. The tree, generally recognized as the oldest living thing east of the Rocky Mountains, is badly the worse for wear but the Davey company experts say they can rebuild it to add 100 years to its life.

The bulk of the money for the project was obtained by the Ohio State Journal where funds were collected. The Herald collected more than $120 while the Chillicothe newspaper obtained about $100. Interest in the drive was wide-spread and many more contributions could have been obtained if an effort would have been made. No pressure other than publicity provided the project thru the drive with no one who did not feel able asked to contribute to the fund. Patriotic organizations over the state aided in the fund and much praise has been heard for the Pickaway-twp clubs and local school children who aided the cause which is so near to them.

Conference of Royalty

The little Princesses Ragnhild (left) and Astrid, daughters of the Crown Prince and Princess of Norway, are shown as they discussed a problem of State in baby talk in their nursery at Skaugum, the royal Summer home near Oslo. In addition to being granddaughters of King Haakon and Queen Maud of Norway, the youngsters are grandnieces of two other rulers—King George and Queen Mary of England.

WORKMAN KILLED

MT. PLEASANT, Mich., Sept. 26.—One workman was dead and four others were suffering from serious burns today, after an oil gusher exploded and trapped them in a flood of flaming oil.

The dead workman was Walter Miller, 28, of Dawes, W. Va. He died in a hospital shortly after flames which shot from the seething Pure Oil Company well No. 4, 13 miles east of here, had been extinguished.

The other victims were Mark Leman, 45, George Jogus, 40, Edward Stone, 30, and Bland Parker, 28.

FOR CLASSIFIED Readers a little money goes a long way.

JURIST IS DEAD

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26.—Judge Willis Vickery, 75, veteran jurist of the Cuyahoga-co court of appeals, died in Cleveland clinic here today after an illness of several years.

Well-known in legal circles of Ohio, Vickery was first appointed to a local bench in 1908. He also was regarded as one of the outstanding classical scholars in Ohio, and he maintained a library that was internationally famous.

Judge Vickery was born in Huron-co in 1857.

WARN OF STORMS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Warning of a hurricane in the West Indies was issued today by the weather bureau.

The warning said a tropical disturbance of small diameter but of considerable intensity was moving westward "rather rapidly" between St Kitts and St Martin islands. "Caution advised vessels in path," the warning added.

Hint for Home Aquarium

A large-sized aquarium which forms a wall panel may be the solution of a dark hall problem in any home. One seen recently was mounted in an entrance hall where there was no window. The light came through the aquarium from a sun parlor, creating an unusual and exotic effect. Fish and aquatic plants formed a lifelike mural decoration.

Ralph Waldo Emerson's View

Ralph Waldo Emerson "the wisest of Americans," mentions the name of Shakespeare twice as frequently in his writings as he does that of his next favorite, Goethe. He is reported to have said, "I am always happy to meet persons who perceive the transcendent superiority of Shakespeare over all other writers."

Diamond Powder

Diamond powder is obtained from the diamond cutting process and by crushing inferior diamonds. The diamond powder is applied with oil.

DIRECTORS MEET

Final plans and preparations will be made tonight for the 29th annual Pumpkin Show when the directors of the Pumpkin Show society meet.

CONVICTS ESCAPE

MANSFIELD, Sept. 26.—Three members of the Grafton "honor camp" of the Ohio State Reformatory escaped today.

They are: Harvey Ray, 19, Franklin-co; John McElhaney, 26, Stark-co, and James Green, 20, Mahoning-co.

Search for the trio was organized immediately.

Reformatory officials also announced today that Stanley Plashewicz, 19, who escaped last May has been captured at Bowling Green.

FIRST APPEARANCE

Rev Fr. J. J. Herman, newly appointed pastor of St Joseph's Catholic church, made his first appearance before the congregation Sunday.

He outlined tentative plans and delivered a fine sermon on "Why We Need the Blessed Sacrament."

Early Church Bells

While church bells were heard in France before chimes were hung in Whithy abbey in England (the year 680) it was not until the Eleventh century that Switzerland and Germany began to regard the bell as a useful factor in community life. Later, "he who commanded the bell commanded the town." The bell-ringers were persons of importance, heralds of good and bad tidings.

Have No Need for Beauty

"We make our idols grotesque," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "to show that the gods in their perfection disdain to glorify themselves with appearances of beauty which would cause envy."—Washington Star.

Or Turning on the Radio

"Burglars are usually gloomy men" observes a writer. You certainly never find them singing at their work.—London Passing Show.

Many Great Artists Alumnae of Burlesque

Closing of Broadway's Lewd Shows Recalls Days When Burlesque Was "Naughty." Many Stars of Stage and Screen Served Novitiate in Colorful Type Productions.

Because the mischievous, playful puppy that was burlesque a decade or so ago has grown up into a vicious mongrel that is more threat than entertainment, Mayor Joseph V. McKee of New York has won the approval of his city by drastically sounding the death-knell of this lewd type of performance. Burlesque was not at all the mixture of nude and semi-nude femininity with a sprinkling of garbage can jokes that brought down the vengeance of the city fathers. There was a time when it might be termed "charmingly naughty," but far from the vicious thing into which it has evolved in the past few years. In burlesque's hey-day, many of the who today are internationally famous, started upon the road to stardom. Polly Moran, comedienne of the movies, served her novitiate in the ensemble, as also did Sophie Tucker and Fannie Brice, performers who have made millions laugh and cry from Broadway to the Pacific Coast. Blossom Seely is another who made burlesque the starting point on her road to fame. If you have a grandfather, it is more than probable that he will remember Lillian Russell, who was once the toast of the country and regarded as one of the world's most beautiful women. In those days a beauty had more curves than Lefty Gomez has today and could make men use of them, but the whole thing was perfectly clean—in fact, immaculate compared to what burlesque has come to mean in recent years. So now Broadway loses another link with the colorful past and is more grateful to Mayor McKee as if he had extracted a decayed tooth.

TIGERS MUST WORK TO BEAT ST. MARY'S

Several Rough Spots to Be Ironed Out by Coach During Week

IRISH SHOW POWER

Only Two Local Backfield Jobs Certain

Sure of themselves but not over-confident after their scoreless tie with Lancaster high school's varsity Friday evening, Coach Pete Herberholz' squad will work this week with eyes on another Lancaster team, this week St. Mary's eleven. The Irish team lost to the high school by only two touchdowns two weeks ago and showed improvement Friday winning from Bremen, 7-0.

The Tigers face a week of hard work. Several rough spots which appeared in the Lancaster game, the first of the season by the way, must be rubbed off. Several times Lancaster's gains, especially in the first half, could be attributed to the fact the local linemen were playing too high. This defect will be given special attention. Then, too, Charlie Davis, colored half-back, appeared shaky on punts and will get plenty of instruction on the art of returning the pigskin and when and where to pick it up and when not.

WORK HUNDLEY, STEELE

Hundley and Steele are in for considerable work with possibilities that one of the two will fill a backfield berth this week. Gaines Hill and Dean White are the only backs certain to retain their posts with the other two jobs wide open. George Speakman, in his first game, appeared to know what it is all about and all he now needs is a little more confidence. His father was a football player before him and with this background young Speakman can hope to go somewhere.

Last Friday St. Mary's scored only one touchdown although four times the ball was carried inside the 10 yard line. Fumbles and a stubborn Bremen line blocked scores until the second frame when a forward lateral pass, Sullivan to Abbot to Sheridan netted 15 yards and Fey, a halfback, scored from the 25 yard line on a spinner play.

Sullivan at quarterback proved specially adept at returning punts according to the account of the game in a Lancaster newspaper.

OFFENSE VARIED

The Red and Black will probably see a wider varied offense put on by St. Mary's than that exhibited by Lancaster high Friday. Coach McDevitt, St. Xavier alumnus, was one of the finest athletes developed at that school and he has instilled a lot of his ability into his squad. No stone will be left unturned by Coach Herberholz this week in an effort to add the St. Mary's game to the correct side of the won and lost ledger. At least two new plays are to be given the Tiger squad this week.

The Tiger players would like to have played Lancaster high school again Friday instead of St. Mary's but they will have to be content with playing the Irish who may prove just as much a test.

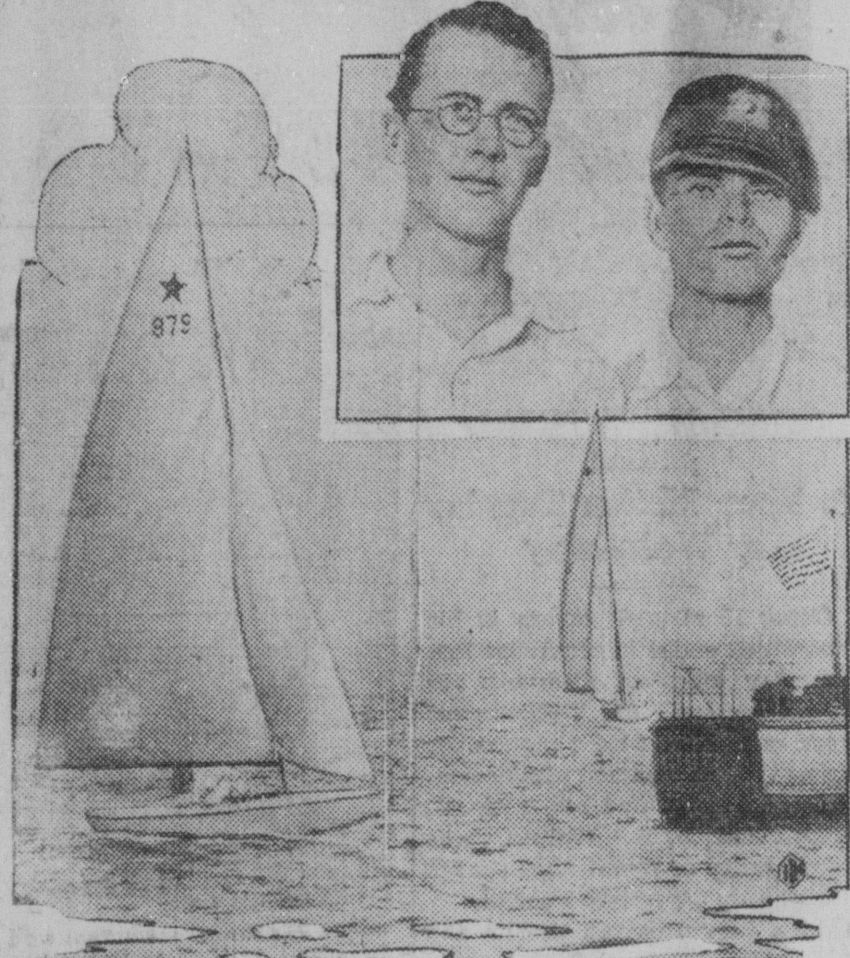

The Lancaster Eagle, Saturday, in reviewing the Friday night game said:

"Circleville's lineup was practically the same as last year but played more uniformly and with more speed. It is a big and heavy eleven and should make a good showing in its league. G. Hill, captain, was held down effectively last night getting away to only one long run, a 35 yard return of a punt."

FACTS DIFFERENT

As a matter of fact only about four positions were filled by the same men as last year, and for another thing Gaines Hill did not re-

White Stars For Bishops

Howard White, son of T. W. White, firmly established himself as a regular backfield performer for Ohio Wesleyan's 1932 football team when he rammed back and forth across Selby field at Delaware Saturday afternoon to lead the Battling Bishops to 20-0 victory over Wilmington's team.

Only a sophomore, and starting turn one punt during the entire evening, Charlie Davis acting as safety man in the first half and Dean White in the second, White made the 35 yard run credited to Hill. Big Gaines did not need to do much ball carrying to be of value to the Tigers Friday, he was in practically eight out of every 10 defensive plays and was the thorn in the side of the Lancaster team through the entire evening.

Considerable ill-feeling was held by Tiger authorities and players Friday evening when they learned Ted Sawyer, a former local athlete was to be one of the officials. Sawyer's name was on a list sent here a week ago by Lancaster officials and E. I. Gephart, faculty athletic manager, returned word to positively not hire Sawyer. When the team was dressing Sawyer appeared and immediately a storm of protest was heard. Coach Herberholz insisted that the man not be used. As a result he was not. Fred Wallace, Lancaster faculty manager, passed Sawyer's presence onto Coach E. J. Wilson and the latter turned it back to Wallace—so who's who and why isn't known.

OPPOSE SAWYER
Sawyer will be remembered as the referee of a Circleville-Delaware basketball game here last winter. Well, everyone who saw the game knows what happened. Carl Purcell was thrown out on fouls that were not committed, and Delaware won the game by three points. After the contest? Coach Ervie Carlisle of Delaware, told Coach Herberholz that he was willing to call the game a draw.

CASPER, Wyo.—After living in Casper eight years, Otto Bennett, lunchroom proprietor, recently traveled to Germany and back in order to legalize his residence here. Government authorities discovered that Bennett's first entry into the United States had been illegal, and threatened deportation.

MANY SOPHOMORES

Wesleyan's starting lineup of Kennaw and Harley at ends, Barber and Mussun at tackles, Lantz and Raugh at guards, Soper at center, Wertz at quarterback, White and Given at halfback and Turley at fullback included seven sophomores, Barber, Lantz, Raugh and Given being the only experienced men in the lineup.

Coach George Gauthier of the Bishops used 27 substitutes during the game at one time sending 10 fresh men on the field.

Herb Bellman, erstwhile Columbus South high gridder, and Big Boy Brown, Hillsboro's most famous alumnus, starred for the Wilmington team.

Next Saturday the Wesleyan team meets the mighty Ohio State University squad at Buckeye stadium, Columbus.

LOOKOUTS TOUGH

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 26.—The Chattanooga Lookouts, champions of the Southern Association, needed but one more victory to clinch the baseball supremacy of the southland as they faced the Beaumont Exporters today in the fifth game of the Dixie series. In a wild hitting blowout yesterday the home-town team for the third consecutive time conquered the Texas league champions, 6 to 4, to make the series game score 3 to 1 in favor of Chattanooga. The Dixie championship goes to the team winning four out of seven games.

Eight hurlers, four for each side, paraded to and from the hill yesterday, with Hensel Hulvey getting the glory for the win.

Clark Totes Ball Over Goal; Chicago Bears Hold Green Bay To Tie.

The touchdown drive started when Claire Randolph, former Indiana all-conference center, covered a fumble.

Chris Cagle and Shipwreck Kelley, the Giants' luminaries, were pretty well covered by the Spartan gridgers.

Other professional results were Brooklyn 7, Stapleton 0; Green Bay Packers 0, Chicago Bears 0; Chicago Cardinals 19, Battle Creek 0, in a non-league game.

The Spartans play the Cardinals at Portsmouth next Sunday before they begin a long road trip.

Nutritious and Appetizing Lunches Are Essential To Child Health.

Packing the school lunch with nutritious and appetizing foods is one way to help protect the health of the school child, points out Miss Alma-Garvin, nutrition specialist for the agricultural extension service at the Ohio State University. One easy way of planning the satisfactory lunch is to think of it as consisting of the following things: sandwiches, a substantial one with a filling of meat, cheese, eggs or peanut butter; a crisp succulent food such as a salad or vegetable sandwich or raw vegetable; milk in some form; fruit or fruit juice; and something sweet.

SEVERAL FILLINGS

In making sandwiches for the school lunch, several fillings may be used. Hard cooked eggs may be sliced and put between slices of buttered bread or they may be chopped and moistened with cream and salad dressing. To the chopped eggs may be added chopped celery, ground raw carrot, chopped olives, or ground nuts. Peanut butter is another favorite with many boys and girls. If used plain, it is rather flat in flavor and has a tendency to roll up in the mouth. This can be overcome by blending it with sweet milk until of the consistency of soft butter, then adding salt to taste. Another way is to take equal amounts of peanut butter and catsup or chili sauce and blend with enough milk to make soft, and season with salt. Still another good sandwich filling, consists of equal parts of cottage cheese and ground carrots moistened with salad dressing.

BUS INSPECTION PROVES SUCCESS

79 County School Pupil Carriers Are Inspected Here Saturday.

The inspection of county school busses here Saturday was declared a success by D. L. Buchanan, superintendent of county schools and the officers in charge.

Seventy-nine busses were run through the inspection bureau which was in charge of Nolin Hathaway and Howard Lucas of the bureau of motor vehicles and Arthur "Bugs" Raymond of the Columbus Auto Club who brought two mechanics with him.

Bad brakes, lack of proper windshield wipers and other deficiencies were noted in the inspection of busses, according to Mr. Hathaway. "Last year 51,500 school busses in the United States hauled 1,585,000 school children to 16,700 schools. The busses travelled over 500,000 miles at a cost of $40,750,000. In Ohio, 5,050 busses in 1931 carried 150,600 pupils to 930 schools at a cost of $4,200,000."

Mr. Hathaway said in speaking of the need of safely driven busses.

Clark Totes Ball Over Goal; Chicago Bears Hold Green Bay To Tie.

With Dutch Clark, Colorado state college graduate, carrying the ball over the goal around his right end in the second period, and Glenn Pressnell booting the extra point, Portsmouth's National professional league grid team defeated the New York Giants Sunday by a 7-0 score.

Five thousand persons saw the thrilling game.

The touchdown drive started when Claire Randolph, former Indiana all-conference center, covered a fumble.

Chris Cagle and Shipwreck Kelley, the Giants' luminaries, were pretty well covered by the Spartans gridders.

Other professional results were Brooklyn 7, Stapleton 0; Green Bay Packers 0, Chicago Bears 0; Chicago Cardinals 19, Battle Creek 0, in a non-league game.

The Spartans play the Cardinals at Portsmouth next Sunday before they begin a long road trip.

SWANSON SPEEDS

Former Columbus Star Shows Heals To Cleveland and Chicago Athletes.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26.—Although suffering defeat in the final ball game, the Chicago White Sox today had demonstrated their superiority over the Cleveland Indians in a featured "track and field meet" between the two teams.

The Chicago players managed to win five of the eight events, most of which were associated with some branch of baseball in the contest. Evar Swanson, Chicago outfielder, won all of the speed dashes, including the 75-yard-even, the Bunt-and-run-to-first heat and the hit-and-circle-bases contest.

TO SELL FRUIT

A sale of a solid carload of California fruit is underway at Funk's Groceteria. Peaches, apricots, prunes, pears, pineapples, white and red cherries, blackberries, raspberries, grape fruit and any other fruit that can be thought of is on sale.

Buyers can sample any variety before they buy.

CARD OF THANKS

To the employees of the Morrow Mfg. Co., the teachers and janitors of the Circleville High School to all the neighbors and friends of our beloved husband and father, the late Seymour McAllister we desire to extend our heartfelt thanks, for their kindness and expressions of sympathy. Also we wish to express our thanks to Rev. M. R. White for his consoling words and to Master & Ebert for their efficient services. We wish to assure them that all has been deeply appreciated.

There will be fireworks aplenty in New York tonight when Max Schmeling and Mickey Walker meet in their fifteen round battle at Madison Square Garden Bowl. It's the German's first fight since he lost the heavy-weight crown to Jack Sharkey and many fight experts consider it Max's first step back to the throne. Mickey's great following look to him to beat Schmeling, and himself give the chance at Sharkey's title. The little "Ransom Bulldog," it will be remembered, fought a draw with the champion a year ago at which time thousands of spectators thought Walker should have been awarded the decision. Tonight's fight will decide which will have the next crack at the Boston Gob's crown.

Aimee's Mate Acts As Envoy

David Hutton baritone of the Angelus Temple of Los Angeles, and husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, as he arrived at Chicago on his way to Kenosha, Wis., where he was to address the district convention of Aimee's church, known as the Four-Square Gospel. Too busy to leave Los Angeles, she sent her husband to represent her.

Packing the school lunch with nutritious and appetizing foods is one way to help protect the health of the school child, points out Miss Alma Garvin, nutrition specialist for the agricultural extension service at the Ohio State University.

One easy way of planning the satisfactory lunch is to think of it as consisting of the following things: sandwiches a substantial one with a filling of meat, cheese, eggs or peanut butter; a crisp succulent food such as a salad or vegetable sandwich or raw vegetable, milk in some form; fruit or fruit juice; and something sweet.

SEVERAL FILLINGS

In making sandwiches for the school lunch, several fillings may be used. Hard cooked eggs may be sliced and put between slices of buttered bread or they may be chopped and moistened with cream and salad dressing. To the chopped eggs may be added chopped celery ground raw carrot, chopped olives, or ground nuts.

Peanut butter is another favorite with many boys and girls. If used plain, it is rather flat in flavor and has a tendency to roll up in the mouth. This can be overcome by blending it with sweet milk until of the consistency of soft butter, then adding salt to taste. Another way is to take equal amounts of peanut butter and catsup or chili sauce and blend with enough milk to make soft, and season with salt. Still another good sandwich filling consists of equal parts of cottage cheese and ground carrots moistened with salad dressing.

79 County School Pupil Carriers Are Inspected Here Saturday.

The inspection of county school busses here Saturday was declared a success by D. L. Buchanan, superintendent of county schools and the officers in charge.

Seventy-nine busses were run through the inspection bureau, which was in charge of Nolin Hathaway and Howard Lucas of the bureau of motor vehicles and Arthur "Bugs" Raymond of the Columbus Auto Club who brought two mechanics with him.

Bad brakes, lack of proper windshield wipers and other deficiencies were noted in the inspection of busses, according to Mr. Hathaway. "Last year 51,500 school busses in the United States hauled 1,585,000 school children, to 16,700 schools. The busses traveled over 500,000 miles at a cost of $46,750,000. In Ohio, 5,050 busses in 1931 carried 150,600 pupils to 930 schools at a cost of $4,200,000," Mr. Hathaway said in speaking of the need of safely driven busses.

All Pickaway-co drivers not showing chauffeur's licenses at the inspection Saturday were ordered to secure them.

Representatives of W. S. Rice, Adams, N. Y., originator of the Rice Method for the self-treatment of rupture at home, will be at the American Hotel, Circleville, Ohio, Wednesday, Sept. 28, also Cherry Hotel, Washington C. H., Ohio, Thursday, Sept. 29, to give a personal and free trial of his Method to all sufferers who want to end rupture troubles and truss wearing.

No matter how bad the rupture, how long you have had it, or how hard to hold; no matter how many kinds of trusses you have worn, let nothing prevent you from getting this FREE TRIAL. Whether you are tall and thin, short and stout, have a large abdomen, whether you think you are past help or have a rupture as large as your fists, this marvelous Method will so control and keep it up inside as to surprise you. It will so restore the parts where the rupture comes through that soon you will be as free to work at any occupation as though you had never been ruptured.

The trial will be absolutely complete and thorough without a penny of cost. You owe it to your own personal comfort and safety not to miss the great free demonstration. It is a real opportunity to learn how you may be done with chafing trusses and the danger, suffering and trouble your rupture has caused.

The hours are 10 to 12 a. m., 2 to 5 p. m. and evening 7 to 8. Remember the dates and place, American Hotel, Circleville, Ohio, Wednesday, Sept. 28, also Cherry Hotel, Washington C. H., Ohio, Thursday, Sept. 29.

TEDLOW CONFESSES

Several members of the church congregation heard a shot ring out a short time after Vincent had started toward his home. Rushing back, they found Vincent's body sprawled on the ground with a bullet hole in the right chest.

Later, Tedlow surrendered himself to Sheriff Wayne Wingett and allegedly confessed the slaying.

begin work. The tree, generally recognized as the oldest living thing east of the Rocky Mountains, is badly the worse for wear but the Davey company experts say they can rebuild it to add 100 years to its life.

The bulk of the money for the project was obtained by the Ohio State Journal where funds were collected. The Herald collected more than $120 while the Chillicothe newspaper obtained about $100. Interest in the drive was wide-spread and many more contributions could have been obtained if an effort would have been made. No pressure other than publicity provided the project thru the three newspapers was used in the drive with no one who did not feel able asked to contribute to the fund. Patriotic organizations over the state aided in the fund and much praise has been heard for the Pickaway-two clubs and local school children who aided the cause which is so near to them.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26.—Judge Willis Vickery, 75, veteran jurist of the Cuyahoga-co court of appeals, died in Cleveland clinic here today after an illness of several years.

Well-known in legal circles of Ohio, Vickery was first appointed to a local bench in 1908. He also was regarded as one of the outstanding classical scholars in Ohio, and he maintained a library that was internationally famous.

Judge Vickery was born in Huron-co in 1857.

WARN OF STORMS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Warning of a hurricane in the West Indies was issued today by the weather bureau.

The warning said a tropical disturbance of small diameter but of considerable intensity was moving westward "rather rapidly" between St. Kitts and St. Martin islands. "Caution advised vessels in path," the warning added.

They are: Harvey Ray, 19, Franklin-co; John McElhaney, 26, Stark-co, and James Green, 20, Mahoning-co.

Search for the trio was organized immediately.

Reformatory officials also announced today that Stanley Plashewicz, 19, who escaped last May has been captured at Bowling Green.

Rev. Fr. J. J. Herman, newly appointed pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic church, made his first appearance before the congregation Sunday.

Early Church Bells

While church bells were heard in France before chimes were hung in Whithy abbey in England (the year 680), it was not until the Eleventh century that Switzerland and Germany began to regard the bell as a useful factor in community life. Later, "he who commanded the bell commanded the town." The bell-ringers were persons of importance, heralds of good and bad tidings.

Many Great Artists Alumnae of Burlesque

Closing of Broadway's Lewd Shows Recalls Days When Burlesque Was "Nicely Naughty." Many Stars of Stage and Screen Served Novitiate in Colorful Type Productions.

Because the mischievous, playful puppy that was burlesque a decade or so ago has grown up into a vicious mongrel that is more threat than entertainment, Mayor Joseph V. McKee of New York has won the applause of his city by drastically sounding the death-knell of this lewd type of performance. Burlesque was not always the mixture of nude and semi-nude femininity with a sprinkling of garbage can jokes that brought down the vengeance of the city fathers. There was a time when it might be termed "charmingly naughty," but far from the vicious thing into which it has evolved in the past few years. In burlesque's hey-day, many figures who today are internationally famous, started upon the road to stardom. Polly Moran, comedienne of the movies, served her novitiate in the ensemble, as also did Sophie Tucker and Fannie Brice, performers who have made millions laugh and cry from Broadway to the Pacific Coast. Blossom Seely is another who made burlesque the starting point on her road to fame. If you have a grandfather, it is more than probable that he will remember Lillian Russell, who was once the toast of the country and regarded as one of the world's most beautiful women. In those days a beauty had more curves than Lefty Gomez has today and could make more use of them, but the whole thing was perfectly clean—in fact, immaculate compared to what burlesque has come to mean in recent years. So now Broadway loses another link with the colorful past and is as grateful to Mayor McKee as if he had extracted a decayed tooth.

American Economics

There has been no lack of economics in the last three years, through they call it an "economic collapse," but good economics have been scarce, indeed. Every politician has imagined himself an economist through his ideas on the subject smell of the street corner and barber shop. Of course the members of the illustrious Order of Sons of Rest have solved the problem many times, while political councils have prescribed their cures. But the world has heard very little from the only men who are qualified to diagnose the case, the real economists. It has seemed that everybody knew what to do about the economic situation but the economists.

He doesn't urge the dole, bonus, national socialization of industry or redistribution of wealth. Rather he prescribes the simple remedy of "healthy pessimism" and "hard work."

By "hard work" he means constructive thought and initiative on the part of industrial leaders, which will lead to work and jobs for the idle. His "healthy pessimism" lies just midway between the transcendental optimism of the prosperity era and the abysmal pessimism of the depression.

Faith in planful production he has none. Capitalistic nations, in his opinion, would not do any better than communistic Russia on the job of social planning by government.

America will let the rest of the world lay with the elaborate theories and schemes of the political economists by virtue of the ballot or by force of arms. As for itself, it will try some of Doctor Madden's medicine, which has never failed her in the past and is suited to her peculiar temperament.

War Debts

REVISION, even cancellation, of war debts has its advocates in the United States. Important group have issued manifestoes and individuals of prominence have publicly proposed the one or the other. A year ago Irving T. Bush suggested that a conference of business men consider the feasibility of persuading private investors to take over the war debts. About the same time the International Chamber of Commerce asked that the war debt issue be reopened and the settlements revised in accordance with changed economic conditions.

This train of thought has taken form at least in the organization of a committee for consideration of inter-governmental debts, which will include in its membership representatives of industry, agriculture and labor. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, is chairman of the organizing committee. Alfred E. Smith, Nicholas Murray Butler and George W. Wickersham are other prominent members.

An open mind among Americans as to the payment, revision or cancellation of the war debt is advocated by the committee, which realizes that the issue is closely related to world trade, unemployment and international finance.

CONTROL of the senate for the short session next winter will remain in doubt until Colorado at a special election names a successor to the late Senator Waterman and until New Jersey goes to the polls in November to fill the unexpired term of Dwight W. Morrow.

Since Senator Waterman's death the line-up in the upper branch of congress has been 47 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one Farmer-Labor member. To obtain a clear-cut plurality the Democrats must carry both New Jersey and Colorado, since they cannot count upon support of Farmer-Laborite Shipstead, of Minnesota, in the reorganization of the senate. Senator Shipstead has consistently voted with the Republicans in the matter of organization.

Continuance of last session's slender margin of Republican control in the senate is important to the administration, which may expect no cooperation from that body should the Democrats win control. The administration cannot be said to have enjoyed the fullest cooperation during the last three years but it must retain nominal control to show even a semblance of power in the senate.

So whether the senate during the short session shall be with or against the administration depends upon the voters of New Jersey and Colorado. They will cast the die for the nation.

'MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY'
THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY
COPYRIGHT, 1932, BY COWICI-FRIEDE INC. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Lola Carewe, "The Night Club Lady", is mysteriously murdered in her penthouse apartment at three o'clock New Year's morning. An hour later, the body of Lola's guest, Christine Quires, is found in Lola's room. Christine had been killed first and her body hidden. Dr. Hugh Baldwin attributes both deaths due to heart failure. Guy Everett, Christine's New Year's Eve escort, claims he brought her home at 12:15 and then went riding, alone, on the Motor Parkway. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, denies seeing Christine return. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt discounts District Attorney Dougherty's theory that Lola was killed by a jewel thief ring she headed and that Christine met the same fate for knowing too much. Vincent Rowland, Lola's lawyer, discloses that Everett loved Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. The police are on the trail of Christine's brother, Edgar, who left his Rochester home for New York after receiving a telegram New Year's Eve. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Dr. Multooler, the medical examiner, contradicts Dr. Baldwin's statement that heart failure caused the deaths. A strap picked up in Lola's room presents mute evidence of having caused the bruise on Christine's neck—after death. Everett confesses he lied about riding on the Motor Parkway. He states Christine told him she had discovered a plot to murder Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge, adding that Dr. Baldwin was involved. The picture of the young man found in Lola's room is identified by the Paris Prefect of Police as that of Basil Boucher, a young bank clerk, who met a dancer named Lola in Paris, robbed a bank to buy her a ruby, and then disappeared. Basil's parents sold medical laboratory specimens. The scientist employed by Colt to analyze the dust garnered from Lola's room telephones that he knows what killed Lola and Christine.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

THE laboratory of Professor Luckner, as I recalled while Neil McMahon was driving us uptown toward Morningside Heights, was a plain room in the rear of a private apartment. Some years before, the old scientist had retired, but at Colt's persuasion had equipped himself with a private workshop which he devoted solely to research work requested by the police department. On many occasions he had been of substantial assistance to Thatcher Colt.

At the door of the apartment we were met by the professor, a mild little man with a red beard turning gray, reminding one of Bernard Shaw. This morning the scientist's eyes were twinkling behind double-lensed nose spectacles and his wild, scraggy gray hair was waving excitedly on the top of his long, thin head.

He led us to a plain room. In the center was a kitchen table, over which had been laid a covering of glistening white cardboard. Here the dust and fragments from the bags of the vacuum cleaners had been emptied. The debris had been spread on the cardboard and the whole dumped mass leveled to a fine thin layer, spread like varnish. Trained on this exhibit was a beam of light from a portable nickel-plated lamp—like the "baby spot" of the theaters—with the additional feature of a belt of mirrors concentrated around the light. Under this light, Professor Luckner had been examining the mess for hours, peering at it through an ultra-microscope.

"Please show us what you have found, professor," pleaded Colt, in his tone a rising note of eagerness. Without replying, Professor Luckner picked up a pair of dainty tweezers. Reaching into a wooden box, which he produced from the pocket of his white linen robe, he nipped something between the steel fingers of his gleaming little instrument. With the air of a conjurer performing a trick he held up the tweezers exposing his treasure.

"I found this in the dust," he proclaimed with an air of pride. We drew nearer and peered at the two fuzzy, microscopic pieces held in the nippers. What could they be? Professor Luckner deposited his precious findings on a clear piece of the cardboard, and placed over it a magnifying glass. "See for yourself!" he invited.

Quickly the Commissioner bent over, turned the screw of the glass, and squinted. With intense interest he studied the almost invisible treasure which the scientist had rescued from a sea of dusty sweepings.

"They look like the thin attenuated bristles of some insect!" declared Thatcher Colt finally.

The professor gave a mighty sigh.

"Exactly, Herr Commissioner!" he boomed. "You should have been a scientist yourself!"

Again without replying, Professor Luckner opened a drawer in the kitchen table upon which he had performed his mysterious labors. From the drawer, he drew out a long tube which physicians call a specimen jar. It is the kind of glass house in which an appendix often finds a permanent home. This jar was nearly filled with yellow alcohol. It was labeled, and as Colt received the bottle from the professor's long, pale hand, he pronounced the legend of the label as if it were an incantation:

"Cebtrurus Exilicandus!"

With a startled air, Colt glanced from the embalmed thing in the specimen jar to the flushed and proud face of Professor Luckner.

"What is this?" asked the Commissioner.

"A scorpion!"

"A scorpion!" repeated Colt in astonishment. "A scorpion, did you say?"

"The most deadly known to man!"

"Lola Carewe and Christine Quires died from the bites of a scorpion?"

"There is no doubt of it! I have already talked on the telephone with your Doctor Multooler."

My ears were ringing with astonishment. How could such a thing have been done? I remembered the box, stuffed with cotton, found in the snow. But who could plot and manage such an unthinkable method of murder? It seemed mad—preposterous—and madder still when I remembered that once Lola Carewe had danced a waltz of her own invention that was called "The Scorpion!"

"Tell me about this," urged Thatcher Colt. "I had never understood that the bite of a scorpion was necessarily fatal."

The old scientist wagged his head to one side and his eyes gleamed with the pride of superior knowledge.

"But this is not the ordinary insect," he explained with a bland air. "It caused me a great deal of trouble before I could identify it. Seven Columbia professors have been here this morning to help me out. Fortunately one of them had this perfect specimen—and then I knew I was right!"

Over Colt's shoulder I looked at the dead creature in the bottle. It was light-colored, long-tailed, and was about two inches long, with two enormous feelers at the head, flat at their ends.

"There is an even finer specimen in the Bureau of Entomology, in Washington, so I am informed," continued Professor Luckner. "I have a photograph—"

"But where are these creatures found?" interrupted Colt.

"Particularly in Durango, Mexico," Professor Luckner replied. "They cause about forty deaths a year in that region."

"What are the symptoms when one is bitten, professor?"

"A stinging, burning sensation like a hot needle being plunged into the flesh. It is a peculiar sensation and is always recognized, even by those who did not see the alacran as the Spaniards call the scorpion. Within a few minutes the bitter place becomes red, followed by a severe pain in the part affected. In a little while—in some cases it is three or four minutes, often a second or so—that part becomes numb. The tongue becomes thick and it is impossible to pronounce words clearly."

Colt glanced at me. Our thoughts must have been the same. Again we were living through those moments of agony when he had found Lola Carewe in anguish on the floor.

"Go on," urged Colt in a low voice.

"For quite a while there is a coma. Then spasms or convulsions of the entire body begin. They are more marked in the legs and back. They are accompanied by a straining and grunting sound. There is more or less paralysis of the respiration. Croup-like sounds come from the throat. These convulsions come in waves and increase in severity. There is a livid pallor to the face. Just before death the pulse is very rapid, the eyes bloodshot—and often the patient spits up blood."

Colt's sombre eyes lingered on the specimen of the dead scorpion in the bottle.

"It all tallies," he remarked. "There is no doubt, as you say, that these two women died from the bite of this insect. But where is the rest of its body? You found only these two legs."

"No more, Herr Commissioner," replied Luckner inconspicuously.

"And why is it that the scorpions, living or dead, were not found?" added Colt, peering under contracted brows at Professor Luckner.

The old savant grinned.

"They die when they bite human beings," he explained.

"Then the murderer must have recovered the dead scorpion—"

Professor Luckner laughed aloud. "All except those two little legs," he boasted, with undignified glee. "And where did it bite Lola and Christine—when there were no wounds on the body?"

"It is not for me to answer that—"

"Not for you—but for me," said Colt in solemn accents. "There was no mark on her body, except—"

"I think I could give you a hint!" cried the old scientist surprisingly. "Look here what I have also done—all for the honor and the glory of your unappreciative police department!"

On another table at the farther end of the room lay the clothes in which Lola Carewe and Christine Quires had been clad when we found them. From out of the bundle one piece lay exposed—the bathrobe about which Thatcher Colt had been so curious. Lola's garment that had been buttoned the wrong way.

"There is what you call a clue, Herr Commissioner," said Professor Luckner. "I cut away the sleeves of all the garments and sheared them open. Here, in this one, just below the elbow, I found something."

When a Child Won't Eat, Better Find the Reason

Some Are Tyrants Who Enjoy the Trouble They Make by Refusing Food, While in Other Cases Constipation or Nagging by Parents May Be the Cause.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

CHILDREN'S interest in their food is dependent chiefly on three factors. These are the type of child, the general health and the environment.

The stocky child with broad chest and ample abdominal development usually takes his meals as a matter of course. His placid outlook upon life is not easily disturbed, provided his physical condition is up to par and his surroundings are a pleasant. Children of this type are easy to manage and to train to proper habits.

The narrow type of child, whose brain and nerves have developed at the expense of his body, is a different problem. He is easily upset. His digestive organs are less vigorous and his craving for food less marked than that of the stocky child. His alert mind finds many interests to divert his attention from the mere routine of meals.

All children suffer at times from minor ailments, some of which cause loss of appetite. A head cold so slight as to attract but little notice, by the flow of mucus into the throat may take away the desire for food.

Constipation is a very common cause of lack of appetite. A body filled with waste products does not give nutrition. Correct the constipation by a mild laxative and the appetite will quickly return. Many parents fail to appreciate the vital necessity for regular daily elimination.

Septic conditions of the teeth, tonsils, and adenoids should not be neglected, for they diminish both vitality and appetite.

Home conditions have a powerful influence upon the nervous system.

Reader, Q.—What causes one to suffer from temporary blindness, associated with severe headache, vomiting and nervousness?

A.—The blindness may be due to the severity of the headache. Make sure there is no underlying kidney condition.

S. A. M. Q.—What do you advise for eruptions on the face?

A.—Diet and elimination are important in the correction of this disorder. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

BREHMER DISPOSES OF HIS GARAGE CO.

Having leased the building so long associated with the Ford dealership, R. L. Brehmer has sold his entire stock and equipment and is vacating the building which is to be occupied October 1 by the Circleville Motors Co.

The Ford dealership has been located in this building since August, 1916, when it was leased from the former owners. The Spangler Automobile Company, the stock of Ford car and Fordson tractor parts was sold by Mr. Brehmer to Fanley & Ostraker of Columbus and the tools and equipment was purchased by several local shops.

An office will be maintained in the building for the collection of accounts of the Brehmer Ford Dealership for a considerable time and will be in charge of Mrs. A. H. Rogers who has been cashier and bookkeeper for the firm.

E. F. May, who has been shop superintendent for the Ford dealer, is establishing a shop on E. Mr. May's reputation built up in the employ of Mr. Brehmer dating from his employment in 1914 will assure him of continued patronage.

A policy of carrying an adequate supply of repair parts for whatever car, tractor, implement, or necessary sold has been carried out by the firm now passing out of existence.

The Circleville Motors Company should profit materially from the new location, located as it is on Court-st and Route 23 with its heavy transient traffic.

MOVIES
AT THE CLIFTONA

A mighty nice story supported by an excellent cast makes up the setting for "Blondie of the Follies," current showing at the Cliftona.

Two poor East side New York girls, Marion Davis and Billie Dove, get a break to enter the follies through a certain rich young man, Robert Montgomery. The two ladies chums and friends since childhood unfortunately pick the same man to love and the situations are complicated throughout the showing. As usual, Montgomery is a peculiar sort of chap and hard to understand and both of the girls believe they have a husband sailed down.

The picture presents some beautiful stage work in which both girls take part. A most unfortunate circumstance occurs in one of the performances when Blondie, being swung by the hand of a chum, Miss Dove, is suddenly thrown from the stage into the orchestra pit, suffering a broken leg. It looks as though her follies days are over as she returns home from the hospital on crutches. However Montgomery intensifies his interest in her and brings five noted specialists to her home. They tell him that "his wife" may be cured. "But, I'm not his wife," she says. "But you will be,"—smack—and the show comes to a happy ending.

Zasu Pitts in her usual role, Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante and James Gleason have parts in the showing. A Paramount news-reel, a comedy and Betty Boop cartoon are three other features in addition to the regular picture.

But there are other obstacles in the way. The report of the Department of Labor, which conducted deportation hearings against both Lancaster and Mrs. Keith-Miller, is now awaiting adjudication in Washington. Should a decision be given in their favor there is still the matter of Lancaster's wife to be considered. For this reason he has set the wedding date for the "earliest possible moment."

American Economics

THERE has been no lack of economics in the last three years, through they call it an "economic collapse," but good economics have been scarce, indeed. Every politician has imagined himself an economist through his ideas on the subject, small of the street corner and barber shop. Of course the members of the illustrious Order of Sons of Rest have solved the problem many times, while political councils have prescribed their cures. But the world has heard very little from the only men who are qualified to diagnose the case, the real economists. It has seemed that everybody knew what to do about the economic situation but the economists.

He doesn't urge the dole, bonus, nationalization of industry or redistribution of wealth. Rather he prescribes the simple remedy of "healthy pessimism" and "hard work."

By "hard work" he means constructive thought and initiative on the part of industrial leaders, which will lead to work and jobs for the idle. His "healthy pessimism" lies just midway between the transcendental optimism of the prosperity era and the abysmal pessimism of the depression.

Faith in planned production he has none. Capitalistic nations, in his opinion, would not do any better than communistic Russia on the job of social planning by government.

America will let the rest of the world join with the elaborate theories and schemes of the political economists by virtue of the ballot or by force of arms. As for itself, it will try some of Doctor Madden's medicine, which has never failed her in the past and is suited to her peculiar temperament.

War Debts

REVISION, even cancellation, of war debts has its advocates in the United States. Important groups have issued manifestos and individuals of prominence have publicly proposed the one or the other. A year ago Irving T. Bush suggested that a conference of business men consider the feasibility of persuading private investors to take over the war debts. About the same time the International Chamber of Commerce asked that the war debt issue be reopened and the settlements revised in accordance with changed economic conditions.

This train of thought has taken form at least in the organization of a committee for consideration of inter-governmental debts, which will include in its membership representatives of industry, agriculture and labor. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, is chairman of the organizing committee. Alfred E. Smith, Nicholas Murray Butler and George W. Wickersham are other prominent members.

An open mind among Americans as to the payment, revision or cancellation of the war debt is advocated by the committee, which realizes that the issue is closely related to world trade, unemployment and international finance.

CONTROL of the senate for the short session next winter will remain in doubt until Colorado at a special election names a successor to the late Senator Waterman and until New Jersey goes to the polls in November to fill the unexpected term of Dwight W. Morrow.

Since Senator Waterman's death the line-up in the upper branch of congress has been 47 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one Farmer-Labor member. To obtain a clear-cut plurality the Democrats must carry both New Jersey and Colorado, since they cannot count upon support of Farmer-Laborite Shepley, of Minnesota, in the reorganization of the senate. Senator Shepley has recently voted with the Republicans in the matter of organization.

Continuance of last session's slender margin of Republican control in the senate is important to the administration, which may expect no cooperation from that body should the Democrats win control. The administration cannot be said to have enjoyed the fullest cooperation during the last three years but it must retain nominal control to show even a semblance of power in the senate.

So whether the senate during the short session shall be with or against the administration depends upon the voters of New Jersey and Colorado. They will cast the die for the nation.

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY
COPYRIGHT, 1931 BY COWLEY-FRIEDLE INC. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Lola Carewe, "The Night Club Lady," is mysteriously murdered in her penthouse apartment at three o'clock New Year's morning. An hour later, the body of Lola's guest, Christine Quires, is found in Lola's room. Christine had been killed first and her body hidden. Dr. Hugh Baldwin attributes both deaths due to heart failure. Guy Everett, Christine's New Year's Eve escort, claims he brought her home at 12:15 and then went riding, alone, on the Motor Parkway. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, denies seeing Christine return. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt discounts District Attorney Dougherty's theory that Lola was killed by a jewel thief ring she headed and that Christine met the same fate for knowing too much. Vincent Rowland, Lola's lawyer, discloses that Everett loved Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. The police are on the trail of Christine's brother, Edgar, who left his Rochester home for New York after receiving a telegram New Year's Eve. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Dr. Multooler, the medical examiner, contradicts Dr. Baldwin's statement that heart failure caused the deaths. A strap passed up in Lola's room presents mute evidence of having caused the bruise on Christine's neck—after death. Everett confesses he lied about riding on the Motor Parkway. He states Christine told him she had discovered a plot to murder Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge, adding that Dr. Baldwin was involved. The picture of the young man found in Lola's room is identified by the Paris Prefect of Police as that of Basil Boucher, a young bank clerk, who met a dancer named Lola in Paris, robbed a bank to buy her a ruby, and then disappeared. Basil's parents send medical laboratory specimens. The scientist employed by Colt to analyze the dust garnered from Lola's room telephones that he knows what killed Lola and Christine.

"Please show us what you have found, professor," pleaded Colt, in his tone a rising note of eagerness. Without replying, Professor Luckner picked up a pair of dainty tweezers. Reaching into a wooden box, which he produced from the pocket of his white linen robe, he mipped something between the steel fingers of his gleaming little instrument. With the air of a conjuror performing a trick he held up the tweezers exposing his treasure.

"I found this in the dust," he proclaimed with an air of pride. We drew nearer and peered at the two fuzzy, microscopic pieces held in the nippers. What could they be? Professor Luckner deposited his precious findings on a clear piece of the cardboard, and placed over it a magnifying glass. "See for yourself!" he invited.

Quickly the Commissioner bent over, turned the screw of the glass, and squinted. With intense interest he studied the almost invisible treasure which the scientist had rescued from a sea of dusty sweepings.

"They look like the thin attenuated bristles of some insect!" declared Thatcher Colt finally.

The professor gave a mighty sigh.

"Exactly, Herr Commissioner!" he boomed. "You should have been a scientist yourself!"

"But bristles of what insect?" urged Colt.

Again without replying, Professor Luckner opened a drawer in the kitchen table upon which he had performed his mysterious labors. From the drawer, he drew out a long tube which physicians call a specimen jar. It is the kind of glass house in which an appendix often finds a permanent home. This jar was nearly filled with yellow alcohol. It was labeled, and as Colt received the bottle from the professor's long, pale hand, he pronounced the legend of the label as if it were an incantation:

"Cebtrurus Exilicandus!"

With a startled air, Colt glanced from the embalmist thing in the specimen jar to the flushed and proud face of Professor Luckner.

"What is this?" asked the Commissioner.

"A scorpion!"

"A scorpion!" repeated Colt in astonishment. "A scorpion, did you say?"

"The most deadly known to man!"

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

THE laboratory of Professor Luckner, as I recalled while Neil McMahon was driving us up town toward Morningside Heights, was a plain room in the rear of a private apartment. Some years before, the old scientist had retired, but at Colt's persuasion had equipped himself with a private workshop which he devoted solely to research work requested by the police department. On many occasions he had been of substantial assistance to Thatcher Colt.

At the door of the apartment we were met by the professor, a mild little man with a red beard turning gray, reminding one of Bernard Shaw. This morning the scientist's eyes were twinkling behind double-lensed nose spectacles and his wild, scraggy gray hair was waving excitedly on the top of his long, thin head.

"Come right in," the savant invited, shaking hands effusively and laughing nervously. "Once more you skeptics shall see what poor, humble science can do!"

He led us to a plain room. In the center was a kitchen table, over which had been laid a covering of glistening white cardboard. Here the dust and fragments from the bags of the vacuum cleaners had been emptied. The debris had been spread on the cardboard and a whole dump mass leveled to a fine thin layer, spread like varnish. Trained on this exhibit was a beam of light from a portable nickel-plated lamp—like the "baby spot" of the theaters—with the additional feature of a belt of mirrors concentrated around the light. Under this light, Professor Luckner had been examining the mess for hours, it peering at it through an ultra-microscope.

"The Logan Elm Wins Reprieve"

Anyone who has ever seen the majestic Logan Elm and especially all who are familiar with the romantic and historical episode connected with it sensed a measure of sadness several weeks ago when the intelligence was broadcast that Ohio's most famous tree was dying. Today they will be happy to learn that the necessary fund to preserve the 300-year-old patriarch indefinitely has been raised.

Shall we call it sentiment that impelled citizens old and young, rich and poor, of all walks of life, to come to the rescue of this revered Monarch of the Pickaway Plains. More aptly defined, it was the impulse of true patriotism.

Among the pathfinders and frontiersmen the tree was famous for its size, shape, symmetry and beauty in pre-revolutionary days. Previous to that Indians for generations had drank from the spring that flowed from its base.

The elm has served as a living monument commemorating Dunmore's peace with the Indians of the northwest just before the outbreak of the revolutionary war. Agreement of the Redman not to hunt south of the Ohio River and not to molest voyagers on the river led to the instant populating of Kentucky and was responsible for peace on the frontier during the early years of the revolution.

By the time the Indians were stirred up by the British, George Rogers Clark and his Kentuckians were able to cope with both the redskins and the redcoats on the western frontier.

According to Theodore Roosevelt and other historians, except for Dunmore's treaty the western boundary of the United States probably would have been the Allegheny Mountains.

The tree figured in the episode not as the place where the peace pact was signed but as the scene of the remarkable speech of Chief Logan of the Mingoes, whose ravages in Kentucky had called forth the Virginia troops. Logan had taken the warpath to avenge the unprovoked slaughter of some of his tribesmen, including a sister and other relatives, by a group of drunken whites headed by a man named Greathouse (not Cresap). Logan boasted that he had revenge by personally taking 10 white scalps for each one of his murdered relatives.

All the chiefs except Logan entered into the compact. Logan's reasons for refusal were voiced in the oration associated with his name, a speech which Thomas Jefferson termed the equal of the masterpieces of Demosthenes and Cicero in eloquence.

That the tree is in danger of collapsing under the tremendous weight of its 75-foot limbs, radiating at right angles in all directions from a decaying trunk, further has been recognized by its owner, the Ohio Historical Society, for several years. The officers of the society have estimated the cost of rehabilitation at $600. A recognized tree surgery company recently placed the cost of a comprehensive and complete job at $900.

The State Journal accepted the latter figure in its appeal for contributions in order to make certain that nothing need be left undone by reason of lack of funds. The money will be turned over to the Ohio Historical Society, which will determine what shall be done to the tree and by whom.

thanked all the contributors for their interest, their generosity and their confidence, and The Circleville Herald and The Scioto Gazette of Chillicothe for their cooperation. It hopes that it may be another 100 years before the hand of man will be called upon to erect a shaft of marble or granite inscribed, "On this spot stood the noble Logan Elm."

WAITS 5 YEARS FOR PATENT

NORRISTOWN, Pa. Almost five years after William Larkin, Norristown, appealed to the United States patent office for exclusive rights over a multidesign rib knitting machine, he was given a favorable answer. In granting him the long-sought patent, the government made it known that 32 claims for an equal number of unique features in the machine had been allowed.

O. S. U. FRESHMEN WEEK WILL BEGIN WEDNESDAY MORN

Classes Begin on Oct. 4; Few Faculty Changes Are Noted This Year.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 26—Freshman Week opens Wednesday at Ohio State University when new first year students assemble. Classes begin October 4.

Only a few faculty changes will greet the returning students. One new building, the University high school, which was authorized three years ago, is being opened with 200 pupils enrolled for it.

Principal administrative change since last spring is the appointment of John F. Cunningham as dean of the college of agriculture. He takes the place of Dean Alfred Vivian who retired July 1 after 30 years of service with the University.

NEW REQUIREMENTS
Freshman entering the colleges of arts and sciences, education, and commerce and administration, will find in effect new curriculum placing a higher premium on classroom excellence and setting up new requirements for graduation.

The college of medicine has added Dr. George M. Curtis, of the University of Chicago, as professor of surgical research.

The university schedule for the year 1932-33 has been revised to make the quarters more uniform in length. Quarterly convocations will come before the final examinations are completed while all the students are yet on the campus.

Commerce extension classes of the university will begin this week in 14 Ohio cities, offering evening instruction in business subjects. The department of mine engineering is conducting weekly classes at 10 points in the Ohio mine fields, for miners and mine officials.

Agreement at noon, and the crowds had waited almost with bated breath for word he had taken food and would live.

When told their idol had broken his fast, a great shout of joy and triumph rose.

The man they honored as a "saint" had won his battle, they cried, for himself and for them. It was exactly one hour and 15 minutes after the Mahatma weakly emaciated, scarcely able to talk had received the news that he broke his diet of water for solid food.

Burke's Poor Beginning
Edmund Burke, the friend of America, did not at first achieve success in the house of commons. When this great orator rose to address the house, the house emptied itself. Burke was nicknamed "The Dinner Bell" in parliament.

BEHIND the SCENE
In HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD.—Don't be surprised if Dolores Del Rio's next picture turns out to be the Flagg and Quirt story that Fox is planning for November.

Harry Edgington, the Mexican star's manager, likes to surround his business deals with mystery, but negotiations are on and I've a hunch an announcement will be forthcoming before long.

It would be quite fitting for Dolores to take this part, because she was the girl in "What Price Glory," first of the series in which Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen played their now familiar characterizations.

Since leaving R-K-O, Dolores has been vacationing at her home near the beach. Some time ago she intimated that she would sign a new contract in about three weeks. The time is nearly up.

It's a chuckly story Benny Rubin tells about the impetuous suitor of a Broadway chorine.

First time he met her, the chap went into this kind of hysteria: "Your eyes are marvelous, your lips are beautiful, your nose is adorable, your hair is spun gold."

"Say, what is this—a proposal or an inventory?"

BOULEVARD TOPICS.

Harold Lloyd expects to see his picture, "Movie Crazy," open in six European cities: London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Madrid and Rome. The bespectacled star leaves here tonight for New York a week ahead of his family. A great baseball fan, he wants to get in a couple of world's series games before he sails. What is this thing called love? Dorothy Lee and Marsh Duffield have made three trips to the harbor to sail on that ship of chance, the S. S. La Playa. They've missed it every time.

Even Lon Chaney never equalled the complicated makeup of Boris Karloff in "Omootep." One day last week the star was in the hands of the makeup man from 10:45 in the morning until 6 at night. During this time they converted him into a dummy—a little matter involving 150 yards of tape, wrinkling processes, deadening of the hair and a dusting with cement powder. After sitting in a chair for 7 hours and 15 minutes, Karloff was carried to the set, where he worked until midnight.

Meanwhile Playwright Preston Sturges will take time off from that Sidney Fox story and do the screen version of Karloff's next picture, "The Invisible man." Samuel Sornis, 22 years old and said to be Mexico's premier bull-fighter, has arrived here to teach Lew Ayres how to twirl a cape for his new picture, "Men Without Fear." That tuncful piece, "The Cat and the Fiddle," will enjoy the longest San Francisco run of any play since 1929. It will do nine weeks—"Grand Hotel" did six. They're paying Al Jolson a small fortune for those radio broadcasts advertising a moderate-priced car. Due here from England soon, James Whale will start "The Road Back" in November.

For all the talk about "Blood and Sand" and other romantic vehicles, Paramount can't quite bring itself to take George Raft out of underworld pictures. The slender New York youth, who was a boxer, baseball player and dancer before he took up acting, will team it with Nancy Carroll in "Undercover Man," an expose of police liaison work in a metropolitan city.

Dr. Charles Armstrong of the Public Health Service in Washington, D.C., who used his own blood in preparing the serum that was rushed by plane to Mrs. William E. Borah, wife of the Senator from Idaho, at Boise. Mrs. Borah, who was suffering from an illness, diagnosed as "parrot fever," is reported improved.

melodramas. George plays a member of the police undercover squad—not a stoolie—while Nancy is a Follies girl.

DID YOU KNOW—

That Wallace Beery's first long pants suit was made over from the uniform of his father, a policeman, and came to Wallie after two of his brothers were through with it?

Another newcomer from the stage is wondering why they say the gates of Hollywood are hard to crash. He is Lyle Talbot. Warners gave him several good parts and now Harry Cohn has signed him to play the lead in "No More Orchids." Carole Lombard has the girl's role in this Columbia picture, and that excellent character actress, Louise Closser Hale, draws an important assignment.

That Clark Gable once played for a co-operative stock company and drew $1.30 for his week's work?

Music For Show
Is Well Handled

The 1932 Pumpkin Show will be well taken care of in music and amusements with Tom D. Krinn as chairman of this department. The high school band, the junior band, the American Legion drum corps, three local units of which we can well be proud, besides the Hallsville band have been signed for the show. The rides will all be new this year with the F. E. Gooding Amusement Co. giving the Pumpkin Show the same rides as at the State Fair.

The same number of free acts as held each previous year, a. the same locations and same times are also planned.

"They Say . . ."
KILLED BRUTUS

Brutus was a good dog, the friendly, tail-wagging, smiling kind of dog. Wanting to be petted he jumped upon the lady, who was frightened. The person she told this to said Brutus had jumped and snapped. The next person had said Brutus was frothing at the mouth. Some boys saw Brutus and threw stones. Brutus ran. "Mad dog! Mad dog!" the boys cried. Brutus was cornered and shot.

From gossip to scandal is a short step, and heaven held the person or thing against whom the public mind is poisoned.

Successful merchants and manufacturers are those who realize the mischief that can be created by "They say." These business men, determined to say the truth, themselves, about their own merchandise and service, employ advertising to protect themselves and the public from half truths, from falsehoods and from the common garden variety of ignorance that works havoc among the very best of intentions.

These merchants and manufacturers are under no delusions. They know they cannot tell untruths about their products and get away with it because there is nothing that will bring ruin so fast and sure as to turn the bright, white light of publicity on inferior wares or unsatisfactory service.

Advertising forces manufactures to compete for your trade and your dollars. It compels the offering of better merchandise, better service, fair prices. You can trust the advertisements in this paper.

When told their idol had broken his fast, a great shout of joy and triumph rose.

The man they honored as a "saint" had won his battle, they cried, for himself and for them.

It was exactly one hour and 15 minutes after the Mahatma, weak, emaciated, scarcely able to talk, had received the news that he broke his diet of water for solid food.

Burke's Poor Beginning
Edmund Burke, the friend of America, did not at first achieve success in the house of commons. When this great orator rose to address the house, the house emptied itself. Burke was nicknamed "The Dinner Bell" in parliament.

BEHIND the SCENE In HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD.—Don't be surprised if Dolores Del Rio's next picture turns out to be the Flag and Quirt story that Fox is planning for November.

Harry Edgington, the Mexican star's manager, likes to surround his business deals with mystery, but negotiations are on and I've a hunch an announcement will be forthcoming before long.

It would be quite fitting for Dolores to take this part, because she was the girl in "What Price Glory," first of the series in which Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen played their now familiar characterizations.

Since leaving R-K-O, Dolores has been vacationing at her home near the beach. Some time ago she intimated that she would sign a new contract in about three weeks. The time is nearly up.

It's a chuckly story Benny Rubin tells about the impetuous suitor of a Broadway chorine.

First time he met her, the chap went into this kind of

hysteria: "Your eyes are marvelous, your lips are beautiful, your nose is adorable, your hair is spun gold."

Finally, the bored chorine cut him short.

Harold Lloyd expects to see his picture, "Movie Crazy," open in six European cities: London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Madrid and Rome. The bespectacled star leaves here tonight for New York a week ahead of his family. A great baseball fan, he wants to get in a couple of world's series games before he sails. What is this thing called love? Dorothy Lee and Marsh Duffield have made three trips to the harbor to sail on that ship of chance, the S. S. La Playa. They've missed it every time.

Even Lon Chaney never equalled the complicated makeup of Boris Karloff in "Omhotep." One day last week the star was in the hands of the makeup man from 10:45 in the morning until 6 at night. During this time they converted him into a dummy—a little matter involving 150 yards of tape, wrinkling processes, deadening of the hair and a dusting with cement powder. After sitting in a chair for 7 hours and 15 minutes, Karloff was carried to the set, where he worked until midnight.

Meanwhile Playwright Preston Sturges will take time off from that Sidney Fox story and do the screen version of Karloff's next picture, "The Invisible man."

Samuel Soris, 22 years old and said to be Mexico's premier bull-fighter, has arrived here to teach Lew Ayres how to twirl a cape for his new picture, "Men Without Fear."

The Cat and the Fiddle, "The Cat and the Fiddle," will enjoy the longest San Francisco run of any play since 1929. It will do nine weeks—"Grand Hotel" did six.

They're paying Al Jolson a small fortune for those radio broadcasts advertising a moderate-priced car. Due here from England soon, James Whale will start "The Road Back" in November.

For all the talk about "Blood and Sand" and other romantic vehicles, Paramount can't quite bring itself to take George Raft out of underworld pictures. The slender New York youth, who was a boxer, baseball player and dancer before he took up acting, will team it with Nancy Carroll in "Undercover Man," an expose of police liaison work in a metropolitan city.

This original story by John Wistach deals with the stolen car racket, one of the few angles left untouched by the previous crime

Borah Benefactor

Dr. Charles Armstrong of the Public Health Service in Washington, D. C., who used his own blood in preparing the serum that was rushed by plane to Mrs. William E. Borah, wife of the Senator from Idaho, at Boise, Mrs. Borah, who was suffering from an illness, diagnosed as "parrot fever," is reported improved.

Appeals to Poor Man

"Extravagance," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "is often popular in a prince, because it implies august approval of what the poor man would permit himself if he had the opportunity."—Washington Star.

Once a Tropical World

The story that the ancient coal deposits tell is that of a great change in climatic conditions that has been brought about through the ages. Scientists believe that at one period in the world's history tropical conditions must have been present the world over.

First Postage Stamp

The postage stamp grew out of the necessity for issuing a receipt for money paid in advance for the carriage of letters. Sir Rowland Hill, a British postal reformer, conducted for some years an agitation for cheap postage and uniform rates, and the postage stamp was one of his proposals. Great Britain became the first stamp-issuing country in 1840, when a number of Hill's suggestions were adopted.

Magnets Salvage Metal

About 1,000 tons of tin cans and other metal are salvaged each month from the waste of Los Angeles by big magnets, after which the metal is pressed into bales and stacked to form veritable mountains of tin and iron. The salvage process was adopted when a survey disclosed the thousands of tons of metal discarded annually by the housewives of the city, and now provides a profitable business for the company doing this work.

melodramas. George plays a member of the police undercover squad—not a stoolie—while Nancy is a Follies girl.

DID YOU KNOW—

That Wallace Beery's first long pants suit was made over from the uniform of his father, a policeman, and came to Wallie after two of his brothers were through with it?

Another newcomer from the stage is wondering why they say the gates of Hollywood are hard to crash. He is Lyle Talbot. Warner gave him several good parts and now Harry Cohn has signed him to play the lead in "No More Orchids."

Carole Lombard has the girl's role in this Columbia picture, and that excellent character actress, Louise Closser Hale, draws an important assignment.

Music For Show Is Well Handled

The 1932 Pumpkin Show will be well taken care of in music and amusements with Tom D. Krinn as chairman of this department. The high school band, the junior band, the American Legion drum corps, three local units of which we can well be proud, besides the Hallsville band have been signed for the show. The rides will all be new this year with the F. E. Gooding Amusement Co. giving the Pumpkin Show the same rides as at the State Fair.

The same number of free acts as held each previous year, a. the same locations and same times are also planned.

"They Say . . . " KILLED BRUTUS

Brutus was a good dog, the friendly, tail-wagging, smiling kind of dog. Wanting to be petted he jumped upon the lady, who was frightened. The person she told this to said Brutus had jumped and snapped. The next person had said Brutus was frothing at the mouth. Some boys saw Brutus and threw stones. Brutus ran. "Mad dog! Mad dog!" the boys cried. Brutus was cornered and shot.

From gossip to scandal is a short step, and heaven held the person or thing against whom the public mind is poisoned.

Successful merchants and manufacturers are those who realize the mischief that can be created by "They say." These business men, determined to say the truth, themselves, about their own merchandise and service, employ advertising to protect themselves and the public from half truths, from falsehoods and from the common garden variety of ignorance that works havoc among the very best of intentions.

These merchants and manufacturers are under no delusions. They know they cannot tell untruths about their products and get away with it because there is nothing that will bring ruin so fast and sure as to turn the bright, white light of publicity on inferior wares or unsatisfactory service.

Advertising forces manufactures to compete for your trade and your dollars. It compels the offering of better merchandise, better service, fair prices. You can trust the advertisements in this paper.
